Your support makes a difference!

Four years ago, James Kulatkowski was living on the streets and was forced to eat from garbage bins.

Today James works as a handyman doing renovations and odd jobs and has a place to live. But he still struggles to make ends meet and buy groceries.

“Right now work is slow,” says James.

“It's difficult to work steadily during this uncertain economy.”

One thing James can depend on is a hot nutritious meal, thanks to a meal program, partially supported through a United Way funded agency.

“Worrying about finding my next job can be stressful but not having to worry about my next meal is a great relief,” he says.
